

The C. David Campbell Summer Teacher in Residence Program City of Detroit and Wayne County

Make a Difference for Detroit Teachers and Students this Summer!

Apply to be a Teacher in Residence for the international nonprofit Learning to Give

Expertise: Share your passion for empowering all students through volunteering and community awareness! Help support and build the community of Wayne County educators who teach the next generation that we all have something to give to make our communities better places.

- Due Date for Application: May 20, 2017
- What: Summer Teacher in Residence program for Detroit and Wayne County teachers (one per year for ten years)
- Expectation: 10 - 15 hours per week for ten weeks (flexible hours to fit your schedule)
- Stipend: $5,000 for the summer
- Requirements:
 - Three or more years teaching experience in Detroit or Wayne County
 - The Teacher in Residence must have a personal passion for volunteering or civic responsibility and an awareness that an important role of teachers is to prepare youth as participatory citizens. The teacher must be self-motivated and willing to facilitate relationships with teachers and local nonprofits. The individual must have good communication skills and knowledge of sound teaching practices in a diverse classroom environment.
- Activities: Collaborate with Learning to Give's director through regular phone and occasional in-person meetings, facilitate connections and share resources with Wayne County teachers, connect with Detroit nonprofit resources, and enhance existing lesson plans with relevant and timely activities
- Outcomes: A virtual community of teachers connecting in dialogue about best practices for empowering student service; lesson plans that meet the needs of Detroit teachers and K-12 students and teachers globally; relationships with local nonprofits interested in developing the civic identity of students; more Detroit and Wayne County teachers aware of free resources to support their teaching

What Is Learning to Give?

Learning to Give equips K-12 teachers to inform and inspire students as caring citizens who give their time, talent, and treasure to make a better world. Learning to Give helps teachers infuse philanthropic knowledge and practice into their teaching to improve student engagement, dialogue, and community. Explore Learning to Give resources at www.learningtogive.org.

Learning to Give was established in 1997 with the goals of giving youth a strong foundation in giving and generosity while teaching the structure and importance of our country's deep giving heritage. Over 20+ years, Learning to Give has trained thousands of teachers in philanthropy education who generously gave their time to write 1,700 lessons that are grounded in academic content, infused with the established philanthropy themes, and offered free on the global website. Learning to Give has about 2 million global visitors to the website each year. We are on Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest, and LinkedIn.

The Dave Campbell Teacher in Residence Project

Learning to Give established a Teacher in Residence program in 2015 in honor of the late C. David Campbell, a Detroit philanthropist, and funded by the McGregor Fund. This professional summer opportunity for a teacher from the Detroit area carries on Mr. Campbell's passion for making sure that the children of Detroit are engaged in philanthropy education and empowered to recognize that they have something valuable to give. The Teacher in Residence will play a key role in building Learning to Give resources and relationships to connect Detroit teachers and students with their community.

With the recent events in the Detroit revitalization, this is an ideal time to raise the awareness of Detroit-area students about the role of nonprofits, leadership, and collaboration in the City's transformation. This is an opportunity to help youth gain a more personal sense of civic responsibility.

Teaching Experience (Number of years, locations/levels/subjects taught, your education):

For the next four questions, please write approximately 250-word narrative responses.

1. Tell about your interest in giving, volunteering, and social advocacy. (Where/how did you learn to give or about philanthropy education/service-learning, and what does it mean to you personally?)
2. How does this Teacher in Residence experience relate to your teaching and professional development goals?
3. What are 2-4 Detroit or Wayne County resources or recent events of special interest to you as a teacher? Describe briefly a potential learning opportunity (academic and civic) for your students for each resource/event.
4. How does your school's location in Detroit or Wayne County influence your teaching and students' learning?

Next steps: Please submit your completed application to Betsy Peterson bpeterson@learningtogive.org
We will contact you by email to set up a phone interview if you are selected as a finalist for the summer 2017 Teacher in Residence position.
