Reflection Questions to discuss:

1. What do all of these faiths have in common?
2. Philanthropy means "love of humanity" in Greek. Many of these faiths equate giving with knowing the love of God. How does your own faith or spiritual practice relate service to love? Can one be philanthropic without religion?
3. Reading these religious texts from several faiths, is there hope that mankind can get along better in the future? Considering such similarities, why do you think conflicts persist between different faiths?
