

Hunger Investigation

Your team is investigating the issue of hunger, or food insecurity. You may have been assigned or you selected a region to investigate and/or an article to read. With your group, read about the issue (either locally or nationally) and prepare a short report to share with the class. Your investigation may include contacting a local food bank or a nonprofit organization to find out more about needs and how you can help them.

Conduct your research and be ready to share the following minimum information:

1. Define the area you are investigating.
2. How many people are experiencing food insecurity in the area?
3. What are some organizations that are addressing the issue in the area?
4. What is needed to help address the issue (time, talent, donations)?
5. What are some local features and resources of the area (geographically and interpersonally)?
6. What is your reflection on the issue and what our class can do?

Each group gathers information and prepares a short report to share what they learned about hunger locally or nationally.

Be ready to present to the class on this date: _____
